As the new Catalan parliament, the project is telling the story of Barcelona and Catalonia. Like what have happened before here, turning the fortress into the city’s public park; turning the military castle into the Olympic and culture area, this project decided to occupy the existing military building and turn it into a public space.

Barcelona, as a city lying its back on the mountain and facing mediterranean sea, represents the most distinctive character of Catalonia. Thus, being the new Catalan parliament and a public space, the project is aiming to capture this vital character of the city, fold and compress this city-scale experience into an existing fabric. To create connection all the way through mountain to the sea. This is a place keep reminding people where they were and who they are.
Experience the city: Sea to Mountain with urban public spaces, nonlinear.

Compress the experience: 12km to 120m with public space.

Embody the experience: a new pathway inside the existing building with different functions.
